Tips

- It gives the option of what happens when friends tag you or your content, or post on your timeline.
- Be aware that not having a private account means people can look at your pictures on Google just by typing your name.
- A good recommendation is to only let friends see your info, friends of friends can mean Internet predators your friends may not be aware of.
- Remember to stay safe online.
- In the Security tab: make sure “Secure Browsing” is enabled.
- In the Privacy tab: make sure your posts are visible only to those whom you want it to be seen to (recommended “Friends”).
- In the Timeline and Tagging tab: make sure you know who can post on your Timeline. Do you really want everyone in the world to be able to do this?
- In the same tab: Take a minute to review all the settings under “How I can manage tags people add and tagging suggestions?” These are important.
- In the Notification tab: make sure you’re notified when people tag you, this is something you need to know about.
- In the Apps tab: aside from removing apps that shouldn’t be there, click “Edit” next to “Apps others use” and see what information about you others can share with their apps.
